

Headship round the table trailer - transcript

Leadership succession is one of the hottest topics facing schools and the education community today. With as many as 45% of our current heads approaching retirement age, are we facing a demographic timebomb? How do we develop, recruit and retain the best headteachers in our schools? Could pooling talent or creating federations offer us viable solutions? Join me, Sue MacGregor, for a discussion with a headteacher, a school governor and a local authority executive director about the crucial issues at the heart of succession planning.
